W.A. Rose Welcomes a New Project Manager

Hello |FNAME|

After more than a decade, longtime General Manager Jocelyn Newell and Superintendent Barry Reite have left W.A. Rose to pursue other opportunities.

Jocelyn joined W.A. Rose as project manager

Jocelyn quickly proved that she understood every aspect of the construction business. Clients, vendors and subcontractors--all appreciated her ability to make decisions, her professionalism, clarity, and follow-up. Jocelyn was a pro.

Barry learned about the construction industry from his dad

Barry's dad dragged him along on jobs when he was old enough to swing a hammer. Some of those jobs were with W.A. Rose, where his dad, Ted, was a skilled finish carpenter. Barry became a W.A. Rose carpenter, then a foreman and finally superintendent, managing all of the construction projects,
